DYNO NOBEL ANNOUNCES INDEFINITE SUSPENSION OF MORANBAH PROJECT

Dyno Nobel (ASX: DXL) today announced that it has suspended indefinitely its Moranbah Project. The project no longer meets Dyno Nobel's internal financial criteria.

Dyno Nobel Chief Executive Officer Mr Peter Richards said, "The Company continued to face substantial delays in the project and difficulty in reliably forecasting the project costs in a tight Queensland construction market".

Moranbah Project's estimated gross sunk costs to date are A$280 million.

Dyno Nobel is investigating options to satisfy obligations to those customers that agreed to purchase ammonium nitrate contemplated to be supplied from the proposed Moranbah facility.

Dyno Nobel has retained a project team to consider alternative options for the project.
